Why should we learn the laws in our country?

To know about our rights and dignity - To experience the values of human rights - To participate effectively in the democratic governance - To understand our duties towards others and our country - To affirm and assert our rights - To transform unjust and oppressive statutes - To work for the betterment of people around - To fight against oppression, corruption, exploitation and injustice - To empower the poor and the downtrodden - To uphold the truth, and preserve unity and integrity of the nation.

Justice and progress

"Justice is the basis of any society that wants peace and progress. Law is the instrument for delivery of justice. And yet the tragic truth is that law is often not on talking terms with justice and is even hostile to it. This shall not be. A new awareness, a creative consciousness, a purposive art which will expose this unjust and unjustified antagonism and promote a cross-fertilization of law and justice is the demand the people make out on the jurists-statesman"

Justice V R Krishna Iyer, Supreme Court of India.
